Program

Students are more than scores and percentages. Their understanding and misconceptions are real. How teachers plan for, collect, and use evidence is also real. This session provides a practical process to collect evidence and use it to plan next steps. This proven process complements lesson planning rather complicating it or adding more to an already full plate. Participants will engage in doing math, reviewing student work, and planning for next steps.

This learning opportunity is being offered through a grant from Alberta Education.
